S. G. Nelson and son, Frank, Roy Archibald and Raymond Cowles went on a mighty fishing trip in the Santa Cruz mountains Monday. About all they had to show for it were stories. They enjoyed a surf dip, before returning.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Mendel received a box of wedding cake from England a short time ago, opened and marked, "censored and passed," and not so much as a crumb taken; this in war times. Before the war, when there was no censorship they were lucky to get even the empty box.

The S. G. Rodeck family and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Antrim motored to the camp of the Campbell Redwood Lumber Co. Tuesday, for an outing. That region is a pretty spot and is proving quite an attraction to the Campbell autoists. Work is being pushed on that road beginning near the Camp on the county highway.

Pretty Garden Fete

The Al Fresco Fete and Garden Party held Friday afternoon and evening by the Johnson Avenue Improvement Club was a delightful affair. The grounds and houses where the various features were found were most beautifully and artistically arranged and decorated. The homes and grounds are all so pretty that they furnished a charming setting for an occasion of that nature.

The Betsy Ross tea room, one of the principal parts of the afternoon entertainment, designated by a lettered banner in the national colors was at the home of Mrs. L. F. Shaw, where the decorations and favors were also of a patriotic character. The servitors were very dainty in colonial costumes, and refreshments were served both at tables on the lawn and indoors to the accompaniment of national airs played on the phonograph.

The two Higbie homes were also decorated in the same colors, the lawns and driveways strung with Japanese lanterns and electric lights. Card tables were arranged in the parlors and on the porch at H. W. Higbie's, where punch was served to the players, while a cafeteria supper could be enjoyed next door.

The major entertainment of the evening was staged at Geo. W. Snyder's, whose beautiful grounds were a blaze of lights and whose spacious driveways and beautiful trees were utilized to the full.

The Hawaiian booth placed beneath an overhanging pepper tree, where pine-apple punch, ice-cream in cantaloupe holders and leis were sold, was a picture itself, with its gay decorations and its attendants gaily bedecked.

The summer house had been converted into a wistaria bower from which candy and cones were dispensed, while any wishing to peer into the future were accommodated at the fortune teller's booth.

The children found amusement in trying their skill at an archery contest where success and failure were both rewarded with prizes. Another delight was a ride on little Miss Ralston's pony.

The evening program was based upon Shakespeare's "Seven Ages of Woman" with an opening solo by Mrs. Shaw of San Jose, "Millisande," and "The Maid of Dundee" as an encore, Miss Burlingame at the piano.

Babyhood was represented by the chorus of "Dear Old Irish Songs My Mother Used to Sing;" Childhood, a recitation, "The Moo Cow, Moo," Miss Georgia McCrone, San Jose; Girlhood, song, "School Days," Frances Duncan; Debutante, solo, "Summer" with an encore, "In Italy," Miss Post, with Mrs. Elizabeth Aiten Pugh, both of San Jose, accompanist; Bride, tableau, Miss Marjorie Duncan, with "Beautiful Garden of Roses" by Chorus; Motherhood, "Mother's Old Sweet Lullaby," Mrs. Kent of Los Gatos; Old Age, "Memories," H. C. Smith. The program closed with a chorus, "Wake Up, America." Mrs. G. S. Robson accompanied all but the two numbers mentioned.

Dancing with music, by Alveraz's orchestra, was another popular feature of the evening, while quantities of food, candy and aprons were auctioned off.

The residents of Johnson avenue are to be complimented upon the success with which they worked together in this common enterprise.

Politics Stirring

Governor Johnson, after the rigors of the primary campaign, will take a short rest before entering into the struggle with George S. Patton of Los Angeles, the Democratic nominee for United States Senator.

Interest is now centered in the state conventions to be held in Sacramento by the several parties on September 19. The greatest interest of course is in the Republican convention. The law provides that the state convention of a party shall be composed of the candidates for state officers, if any, except judicial and school officers, and such candidates for Senate and Assembly as have been nominated at the primary, together with one delegate elected from each hold-over senator's district. The state convention will adopt a platform, nominate presidential electors and also name the new state central committee.

To Be or Not To Be

If initiative proposition No. 6 prohibiting members of the State Legislature from holding other State jobs, carries at the general election November 7, successful candidates nominated for State Senator or Assemblyman will be in a quandary. If the legislators resign their appointive State jobs, they cannot be re-appointed after the session. The legislators get $1000 for the session, but most of the jobs held by members in other positions pay much more than that amount.

DISEASE WILL FOLLOW WAR

Certain That It Must Be Years Before Travelers Can Tour Europe In Comfort.

War's terrors will not be over in Europe with the ceasing of the cannon's roar. A more deadly foe—disease—will stalk the ravaged lands after the cessation of hostilities and it behooves the traveler to think of this before planning his trips abroad.

The miles of trenches in northern France and Belgium will be the breeding places of germs. Every battlefield is already a pest region. The debris of thousands of ruined towns in western Europe, unfortunate Poland and Servia are making hotbeds of pestilence. It will take months to purify the water of streams supplying these regions before disease can be stamped out.

The great war hospitals are being equipped to battle with the coming scourges and the staffs of all are being enlarged with doctors and nurses from every land to fight the conflict that is to follow the dawn of peace.

Typhus and cholera, the two most dreaded of epidemic diseases, it is predicted by eminent surgeons and bacteriologists, will ravage Austria this summer and undoubtedly reach its near neighbor and ally, Germany. Thirty thousand cases of typhus have already been reported in Servia. In one town alone, it is said, a hundred patients are dying daily of the dread affliction. Smallpox and scarlet fever are present in some communities and cholera is expected with warmer weaher.

According to cabled dispatches every community on the main lines of travel is in the clutches of typhus. Smallpox is also prevalent in Turkey and Palestine. Thus there remains but little territory in Europe immune from the threatened danger. The starvation and privation that will inevitably follow the war will menace Europe's health for an indefinite period.

It will be years before the traveler can tour Europe as he did 12 months ago, without lurking fear of sickness.—Kathleen Hills in Leslie's Weekly.

Trieste in History.

As a business city, Trieste, now looming so large in the public eye since Italy declared war, is tremendously successful, and therefore largely modern. Its harbor facilities are the best that modern technic can devise, and many millions of dollars have been expended in carrying their undertaking to conclusion. In 1910 nearly 12,000 vessels, representing a total of about 4,200,000 tonnage, entered and cleared at the Trieste harbor. The population numbers 229,475, of whom about 170,000 are of Italian descent. The new part of the city nas been built largely upon land reclaimed from the sea; its streets are broad and straight and its buildings are substantial and modern in architecture. Tergeste (Trieste), the Roman colonization of this coastland, was probably established under the reign of Vespasian. After the decay of Rome, Trieste experienced a checkered course for centuries. It was captured by Venice in 1203. Its people struggled with the Venetian conquerors for the next 180 years, and finally, in 1382, they placed themselves under the protection of Leopold III of Austria.

"Living Whist."

The game of "living whist" is a follower, and a most unsatisfactory one, as a matter of fact, of the game of "living chess." The latter has been given frequently in out-of-doors fetes. The ground is marked in squares, like a huge chessboard, and the pieces are represented by women and men in costumes that indicates their positions—queens, bishops, knights, pawns, etc. The game is played by the directions of two persons seated on thrones at the edge of the board, the pieces making the moves indicated by them. "Living whist" followed this scheme, but by its nature was far less successful. The board and squares were lacking and the game did not lend itself to the scheme. Of such a game as "living bridge" or "living auction," however, we can find no record, and it is most unlikely that such a game could be played at all, as the bidding, which is, of course, the real essence of these games, would be an impossibility.

Lady French's Canteens.

Lady French is at the head of the canteens which are being operated in England for the benefit of the munition workers. The need for such canteens is caused by the munition factories taking on such a large number of workers that often it is impossible for these extra hands to get living accommodations within a reasonable distance of the factory.

In some towns where the manufacture of munitions is being rushed to the utmost capacity of the factory there are no restaurants. In others the facilities for supplying meals is far below the demand. So the women of England, under the leadership of Lady French, have undertaken to supply the need, to do for the munition worker what the Army Service corps has done for the men in the field. Good food, freshly cooked and well served, is supplied to munition workers at a minimum cost, which means that the workers pay for all they get, but not enough for the canteens to make a profit.

VISITS SACRED SPOT

DAUGHTER OF LIVINGSTONE SEES PLACE WHERE HE DIED.

Brick Memorial Has Been Erected in Inclosure Where the Heart of the Great Explorer and Missionary Was Buried.

Mrs. Livingstone Wilson, only surviving child of Dr. David Livingstone, the explorer, recently made a journey to Old Chitambo, where her father's heart was buried. Old Chitambo is northeast of Rhodesia, a cleared space in the heart of the bush, and it took over a month to reach it from Capetown. At New Chitambo, which is 55 miles farther on, Mrs. Wilson was going to stay with her son, who is a medical missionary, and her daughter, who is a nurse.

At the Victoria falls, discovered by her father, she secured a photograph showing the point from which he caught the first glimpse of this great rush of water. At Broken Hill she was met by her daughter and later by her son, and they trekked to Chitambo with 60 carriers, a native teacher acting as interpreter.

In the native villages as they passed through they excited much interest, says the London Times. In one their hair aroused the curiosity of the native women, and when they let it down to show them the women ran shrieking away, fearing it was snakes growing on their heads. At another native village the chief brought all the sick natives that Doctor Wilson might prescribe for them, but he made some difficulties by insisting on taking a dose of every medicine which was ordered for his people. The narrow canoes, the unsafe native bridges of stocks, the thwarts of which had been eaten by white ants, and the fear of mudholes and crocodiles when the travelers were carried in hammocks across the rivers made the journey adventurous.

At Old Chitambo an old chief called Chitend, from another village, claimed that it was in his mother's hut that Doctor Livingstone died, and four other old men, who refused to believe that Mrs. Wilson was Doctor Livingstone's daughter—"He had no child with him; he always came alone," they said—remembered him and told of him through the interpreter. The discrepancies between their version and that of the biographers were, Mrs. Wilson said, of great interest. The old chief's claim that Doctor Livingstone died in his mother's hut arose from the fact that, while his followers had gone ahead to build him a grass hut, he became so ill that he had to rest under the eaves of a native hut, dying afterward in the grass one that had been built for him.

The old men declared that they remembered his followers building a stockade around the hut while they embalmed the body in salt and brandy, burying the heart under a great tree, at the other side of which old Chitambo, the chief of the village, who had had a great respect for the explorer, was afterward buried. The explorer's body, as is well known, was borne a thousand miles through the forest to be sent to England by his faithful native followers, Jacob Wainwright, the best-known of these, had asked the old chief to keep the grass always burned close around the tree at Chitambo, so that it might escape the dangers of forest fires.

Afterward the tree was struck by lightning, and the present memorial, in sloping brick, with a cross at the summit—the slope being made to prevent elephants brushing their trunks against it—was erected in the bush with an avenue cleared in front of it. Here was placed a book on which big game hunters and explorers who penetrated thus far might note their names.

World's Greatest Banana Zone.

Costa Rica, the greatest banana country of the western hemisphere, produces more bunches of the fruit of the Musa Sapientium than any other single country on the American continent. It exports from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 bunches. Nearly 390 square miles of land are included in the banana zone, though not all this tract is under cultivation. During the past few years there seems to be a falling off in the yield of the banana, due partly to a disease whose origin and elimination are yet unsolved problems, although the subject of much scientific study and investigation. Nevertheless new plantations are being made at various points in the fruit districts, while much of the abandoned lands are being planted in cacao. This latter product is thriving splendidly.

Last Word in Thrift.

The proverbial thrift of wealthy New Yorkers has been thwarted by the courts. Two men who were executors of a will, covering a large estate, were under that will trustees of about $400,000. When they turned in their account they charged the regular commission for the difficult and costly labor of handing over to themselves the sum they were to take care of. Certain heirs, equally thrifty, entered a protest and the courts have ruled that a man isn't entitled to pay for handing himself what he already has.

Prophets and Submarines.

"The U-boats of unbelief," says Rev. John Fox of the New York presbytery, "have fired another torpedo at the Bible." Be that as it may, Jonah's whale was the first to operate under the water and derive a prophet therefrom.—Judge.

Lower California

THEATER IN LA PAZ

THERE have been many rumors of late that Lower California would secede from Mexico and become a republic.

Vague notions prevail of what constitutes Lower California. Physically, it is a peninsula 700 miles long and a hundred miles or so across from the Pacific to the gulf. The peninsula is a jagged one with a mountain range paralleling the Pacific. The sterile heights are not inviting, nor is the cactus-covered tableland. Few passes bisect the mountain range. There is little timber and less water, but the peninsula is not all barren waste. There are regions in which the wealth of tropical vegetation is riotous, and there are great stretches of land which, by means of irrigation, can be made the sources of productive agriculture, writes Charles M. Pepper, in the Washington Star.

It is the coast, nowever, that is of chief international importance. This was charted by Admiral Dewey when he was Captain Dewey. It has also been charted by other officers of the United States navy, and its characteristics are not unknown to the Japanese navy. There are few good harbors either on the Pacific side or on that of the gulf, and that is another reason which makes those that do exist of such international importance.

A wealth of romantic tradition clusters around the peninsula. It has been called "the mother of California." Cortez sent exploring parties there after pearls and gold. The Jesuit fathers established themselves, and all the romance of the mission days is due to them.

Porfirio Diaz gave Lower California the best government it ever had, which was that of a benevolent, but iron-handed, military dictatorship. The peninsula was constituted into a territory, which it still is, and was divided into two districts for administrative purposes. The headquarters of the northern district are at Ensenada, not very far from San Diego, with which steamship communications are maintained. The headquarters of the lower district are at La Paz on the gulf.

Resources of the Territory.

The bulk of the population is in the southern part of the peninsula. The total number of inhabitants is said to be between thirty and thirty-five thousand, of whom possibly three-fourths are in the south.

Under the Diaz policy of encouraging foreign capital to develop the material resources of Mexico, a marked progress was observed in Lower California. The gold mines proved to be largely legendary, but there are several productive silver mines operated by American capital.

Lower California is one of the world's principal sources of copper production. The great mine known as Santa Rosalia is situated near the gulf coast. It is controlled by the French branch of the Rothschild family, and the majority of the foreigners there are Frenchmen. Santa Rosalia has been described as a French municipality in a Spanish and Indian environment.

The pearl fisheries of the gulf at one time were quite valuable, although the reports of the revenues which the Spanish crown derived from them were, as usual, wildly exaggerated. The center of the pearl fishing industry is at La Paz. It has dwindled a good deal in recent years, but is still a source of revenue to the government.

The agricultural resources of the peninsula never have been systematically exploited. This is partly because it only could be done on a scale requiring a large amount of capital and partly because of the political uncertainties. The country itself is not such as to invite many colonists from the United States, though there have been a few adventurous spirits who took their chances. What is needed in order to insure colonization is irrigation.

Magdalena Bay and La Paz.

Attention has been centered on the proper interest of the United States in Lower California through the Magdalena bay incident. That was a case in which Washington could not afford to view the international situation with unconcern.

Naval officers know the harbor as one of the finest in the world, just as the old-time New Bedford whalers knew it. They know that the United States, in due regard for its own rights, never could acquiesce in any arrangement by which any Asiatic power, or, for that matter, a European power, would be allowed to convert Magdalena bay into a naval station. For that reason they, perhaps, were suspicious of the nature of the proposed land and colonization scheme around Magdalena bay.

The investigation made by the state department under the direction of Secretary Knox did not disclose that any foreign government was directly interested in the project. A full report was made to the senate on the subject. Nevertheless, the senate thought it wise to pass the resolution introduced by Senator Lodge, which was in substance a declaration that the United States would regard the establishment of any foreign power at Magdalena bay as an unfriendly act. This was a notice to Mexico, as well as to Europe and Asia.

Magdalena bay itself is thoroughly known to the American navy. When President Roosevelt started the American fleet around the world, Porfirio Diaz seized the opportunity to show his friendship for the United States and to demonstrate that he had no fears of ulterior purposes on our part. He extended the hospitality of Magdalena bay as a naval station for three years.

La Paz, which is on the gulf, has been used as a coaling station by the United States. The station is not far from the old cove which was the rendezvous of the Dutch pirates in the days when the Gulf of California was known as the Sea of Cortez.

La Paz is actually the metropolis of Lower California. The United States maintains a consulate there, and there used to be a small American colony engaged in business. There were also some adventurous Americans who did not know just why they were there.

Should the military leaders of what exists of the Mexican army in Lower California decide to set up a dictatorship and call it a republic, La Paz would be the center of a good deal of interesting news. But there would also be interesting news from Ensenada, on the Pacific coast, which is much nearer to American territory and with which communication is much easier.

KOVEL A STRATEGIC CENTER

Junction Point for Several Railways and Capital of Rich Agricultural District.

Kovel, a town of 30,000 people at the beginning of the war, owes its immense strategic importance to the fact that it is the junction point for railroads which radiate, like the spokes from the hub of a wheel, in five directions. To the northwest, 77 miles distant, is the strongly fortified city of Brest-Litovsk, over whose possession there was a terrific struggle when the Germans were folding the Russians back through Poland after the first Slav drive early in the war, says a National Geographic society bulletin. To the southeast, 84 miles away, is Rovno, a fortress with a population of 40,000 at the outbreak of the war and at that time the headquarters of the Eleventh Russian army corps. Lublin, with 65,000 inhabitants, is 100 miles due west, on the railroad running to Warsaw, 209 miles away. Then to the south is Vladimir-Volynski, 35 miles distant, and to the east runs the line which passes through Sarni on its way to Kiev.

In addition to these railway connections, Kovel is situated on the banks of the Turiya, one of the tributaries of the Pripet river, whose extensive marshes lie to the north where forests cover the land. In the neighborhood of Kovel, however, agriculture is well developed and at the beginning of the war fully one-fourth of the land contiguous to the city was devoted to the production of cereal crops. The peasant farmers in the district of which Kovel is the capital, like those of Volhynia generally, are more fortunate than the peasants in most of the Russian provinces, for here they own nearly 50 per cent of the land.

West of Kovel is the famous battlefield of Dubienka, on the banks of the Bug and ten miles south of Dorochusk, a town on the Lublin-Kovel railroad. It was here that Kosciusko, at the head of 4,000 men with ten cannons, offered a heroic resistance to 18,000 Russians with 60 guns. After holding the superior force in check for five days, the "hero of Dubienka" retired unmolested to Warsaw. This brilliant achievement took place just nine years after a grateful American congress had offered its public thanks to this Polish artillery officer, conferred upon him the rank of a brigadier general, extended him the privileges of American citizenship, and given him landed estates in appreciation of his distinguished services to this country as adjutant to General Washington during the Revolutionary war.

Inspiration of Mother Earth

By JOHN BURROUGHS

Man takes root at his feet, and at his best he is no more than a potted plant in his house or carriage, till he has established communication with the soil by the loving and magnetic touch of his soles to it. Then the tie of association is born; then spring those invisible fibers and rootlets through which character comes to smack of the soil, and which make a man kindred to the spot of earth he inhabits. The roads and paths you have walked along in summer and winter weather, the fields and mills which you have looked upon in lightness and gladness of heart, where fresh thoughts have come into your mind, or some noble prospect has opened before you, and especially the quiet ways where you have walked, pausing under the trees, drinking at the spring—henceforth they are not the same; a new charm is added; those thoughts spring there perennial, your friend walks there forever.

Mother's Cook Book.

Onions are such wholesome vegetables that they should be served in a variety of ways, and are so appealing to the taste that children early learn to like them. The great failing of most housemothers (because of many things to do) is serving the food daily in the same way. "Variety is the spice of life" truly when it comes to food. Change makes old things new.

Onions Stuffed With Ham.

Boil even sized, large onions in salted water until tender but not broken. Cool and remove the centers carefully. Chop the centers with three-fourths of a cupful of cooked ham, and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley and egg well beaten and sufficient cream to moisten. Mix thoroughly and fill the onion shells. Place in a casserole side by side, sprinkle with flour and dot with bits of butter. Pour a little milk into the bottom of the dish and bake 20 minutes, covered. Sprinkle with crumbs and brown, uncovered ten minutes longer. Serve from the casserole.

Luncheon Salad.

Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in a cupful of cold water and dissolve in one and a half cupfuls of boiling water. Add a half cupful of lemon juice, and a cupful of sugar. When the mixture begins to thicken add three tart apples, a cupful of chopped celery and half a cupful of pecan meats. Mold and serve with mayonnaise.

String Bean Salad.

Cook string beans until tender, using small, even sized ones. When cooked, rinse with cold water and arrange them on plates in rings of lemon peel. Garnish with chopped chives and serve with French dressing.

Chocolate Fudge.

Take two cupfuls of sugar, a square of chocolate, a tablespoonful of butter, a half cupful of milk and a third of a cupful of corn sirup, cook together to the soft ball stage when dropped in cold water. Add a half cupful of nuts and a teaspoonful of vanilla, cool, then stir until nearly hard, put into a buttered pan and, when cool enough, mark into squares. This is a fudge that is never grainy if it is carefully cooked.

Veal Birds.

Take veal steak, cut in serving-size pieces, pound until flat and lay on a well-seasoned dressing, roll up with a small piece of bacon or salt pork. Brown in a little hot fat, dust with flour and seasoning and add a little water, then let them simmer in the oven until nearly done, adding rich milk toward the last as the water boils away. The rolls may be tied with string which must be removed before serving or two toothpicks may be used which gives them more the appearance of birds as the toothpicks look like small drumsticks.

Dredging for Gold.

Marysville has a new half-million-dollar dredger, which will probe arable land to the depth of 80 feet, extract the gold in it and leave it in the shape of a useless, nonornamental heap of stones. A gold dredger makes a scar like a high-explosive shell. This is a long step from the happy-hearted, red-shirted forty-niner, with pick and pan and grub stake. It is not exactly a step onward and upward; in fact, it is like a great deal of modern mechanical progress, representing vast ingenuity expended in what is really a nonproductive effort. The value of gold is almost entirely fictitious; the world would not be a whit better off if a whole mountain range of it were discovered and put into circulation. An acre of rich earth is worth more than all the gold that can lie beneathr it, for earth raises grain and fruit and men, while the best that gold can do is to enable men to live without effort, on the results of other men's work.—San Francisco Bulletin.

Bath Without Water.

A bath without water is said to be one of the latest novelties. A thick robe is entwined with the wires, and when put on a current of electricity is passed through the wires. The wearer of the robes soon finds his body getting warmer, until in a little while he perspires freely.

IT KEEPS EDDIE COLLINS BUSY CHASING THE JINX

When it comes to superstition, Eddie Collins has most of his fellow players beaten by several city blocks, and long ones at that.

Collins pulls the stuff right on the ball field before all the people, but not many of them see it. Eddie must have his bat on the end and no other man on the club dares touch that bat.

If two bats in the pile happen to get crossed Eddie will instantly straighten them out. If he doesn't see the thing in time some fellow on the other side is almost sure to make a three-base hit.

After one of the enemy is retired and the ball is whipped around the infield it always must be returned to him before tossed back to the pitcher. If Eddie doesn't give the ball to the pitcher the enemy is liable to bat in six runs.

When he starts to dress for the game he removes his street hat first and immediately puts on his baseball cap. Failure to do so would mean he wouldn't get any hits that day.

If he goes three times and doesn't get a hit he touches each one of the players on the bench with his bat before going up the fourth time. He did that in Chicago the other day and got a triple.

When he goes to bat he takes his chewing gum out of his mouth and sticks it on the button of his cap. When two strikes are called on him he removes the gum from his cap to his mouth, otherwise he would fan.

In dressing in his street clothes after the game is over he puts on all his things, including collar, tie, hat and coat, before he puts on his trousers. Failure to observe this rule would mean loss of the game the next day.

Eddie studied his psychology at Columbia university before he thought of being a ball player. Yet there are many who think he learned the national game under Connie Mack.

What Women Are Doing.

Women are now permitted to register as students in the dental school at Columbia university.

Grace Lee, a Chinese girl, will be salutatorian of the 1916 class of the Yakima (Wash.) High school.

An Italian girl worked in the local mines at Tyler, Pa., for a whole year without her sex becoming known.

A minimum wage of $4.80 a week is paid to all woman munition workers in the Manchester (Eng.) district.

For the first time in the history of bowling, women were admitted to the recent national tournament held in Washington.

Mrs. L. Brackett Bishop, a philanthropist of Chicago, has agreed to pay all the expenses incurred by poor working girls who desire to be married.

The experiment of training women for work as gardeners in the Birmingham (Eng.) parks has proved so satisfactory that their wages have been increased.

WOMEN OF CALIFORNIA SHOULD TAKE ADVICE.

MEDICATED BEAUTIFIER

CALOMEL TODAY, SICK TOMORROW

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

CALLED PARADISE OF BIRDS

Great Lake Region Abounds in Rare Songsters—Attracted by the Many Lakes.

The lake region of Michigan and Wisconsin has been described as the "paradise of birds."

In Michigan alone 300 species of birds have been identified. The great lakes and the thousands of lesser lakes add to the bird life by calling to these waters the aquatic birds. Michigan has many birds whose habitat is in the far north around Hudson bay and others that live in the states south of Michigan, even along and beyond the Gulf of Mexico. The first are illustrated by the Bohemian waxwing, spruce partridge, Canadian jay and others, while the summer red bird, the mocking bird and the cardinal red bird illustrate the second group.

The great lakes attract many birds that are usually maritime, such as gulls and terns.

Michigan abounds in lakes—there are 425, for instance, within a 25-mile radius of Battle Creek—and there are the nesting places for many interesting birds not found elsewhere.

Both Made of Steel.

In a certain old-fashioned country bank the clerks have a quaint habit of speaking of one another as "officers" of the bank.

A new waiter, fresh from Ireland, was recently taken on at the restaurant they all favortd. To him a clerk said on his first morning:

"Pat, have any of the other officers been here yet this morning?"

"Sure, sor," was the demure reply, while Pat's eyes twinkled, "it was hardly three minutes ago that wan av thim went out of the place with his sword behind his ear!"—Answers.

Didn't Have To.

"Well, thank heaven," he said, approaching a sad-looking man who sat back in a corner, "that's over with."

"What is?"

"I've danced with the hostess. Have you gone through with it yet?"

"No; I don't need to. I'm the host."

Turning Night Into Day Robs the Children of the Sleep They Need

By SAMUEL G. DIXON, M. D.
Commissioner of Health of Pennsylvania

The present habit of turning night into day in our highly illuminated towns, with all sorts of exciting entertainment, keeps the nerves keyed up and upsets the equilibrium.

Children especially are apt to suffer from late hours and consequent lack of sleep. For the first two years of life, eating and sleeping are the two great essentials.

Babies should sleep from 15 to 20 hours out of the 24, and older children from 10 to 14 hours. It is not an unusual thing to see babies in arms or very young children being carried about until their parents' bed time. This is very injurious to the children and cannot be made up by additional rest the next day.

Permitting children to remain up late is a strain on their nervous systems which, while it may not be immediately apparent, is bound to exert a detrimental influence in the long run. Oftentimes the ill effects are perfectly apparent to the intelligent observer.

Irritableness and any of the train of evils which result from an overtaxed nervous system may result from continually robbing the child of sleep. A regular bed time should be set for children according to their age, ranging from six o'clock for babies to eight for children of eight or nine, and this should be regularly adhered to. This is a matter of the utmost importance in establishing a sturdy constitution in childhood.

With adults, irregularity and short hours of sleep are often a factor which predisposes to ill health. There are exceptions to this as to all rules. Occasionally one will find an individual who has an unusual capacity for work with less than the ordinary amount of rest, but for the ordinary man or woman this would end disastrously.

Did You Ever Notice These Strange Traits Exhibited by Many Animals and Insects?

There are a great many strange facts about animals and insects that seem to defy explanation. Here are a few, an exchange says:

A fly will crawl to the top of a window pane, fly back to the bottom and crawl up again. Hardly ever does it fly up and crawl down. It has been known to repeat this former act over 30 times before stopping.

Hens always scratch for food with the sun behind them. A blind hen always manages to get the sun behind her when scratching, and she will miss but few bits of food.

Cats hardly ever lie with their feet to the fire. In most cases they lie instead with their left side to it. Dogs invariably lie with outstretched paws to the fire.

A mouse overlooks a perfectly safe food supply, sufficient for a meal or two, to enjoy the perilous pleasures of an unlimited store. It will hide near the food and come out to nibble when hungry, for it is not true that a mouse will seek its hole at the first alarm.

If a small snake is kept in captivity and fed and cared for it will become tame, and after a few months crawl to its captor for food when approached. This is true especially of the small and harmless varieties.

The Cleopatra of War.

An American photographer who has been engaged in taking pictures of the European armies in action has noted an interesting exception to the well-known rule that seasoned soldiers pay little attention to the sights and sounds of battle which civilians find so impressive.

"Everywhere one goes," he remarks, "there is the roar of artillery. The men in the trenches get used to the firing and pay no attention. Every clear day, too, the air is full of aeroplanes. Battles in the air are a daily occurence, but everyone still looks up to watch the flyers battling."

The time may come, of course, when the rattle of machine guns in the sky will receive from seasoned soldiers no more attention than they give to the fire of artillery to which they are not destructively exposed. But that adjustment of the nervous system has not yet come.

The aircraft is still the Cleopatra of war, from whom the unexpected is expected. To the most seasoned soldiers "age has not withered, nor custom staled, her infinite variety."

Caracas, capital of Venezuela, is to have a huge new building.

There is a species of porcupine in Cuba which has no quills. Needless to say, he is a pacifist.

Imports of kerosene into China aggregate nearly 200,000,000 gallons a year.

Health of Rural Children.

Medical care in the rural districts has fallen to the point where only 17 per cent of country schoolchildren are normal in every respect, according to Dr. W. E. Lower, president of the Ohio State Medical association. He suggested the establishment of medical centers at county seats from which all doctors in rural communities could work and where up to date surgical appliances could be maintained.

A FEW SMILES.

Too Many Birthdays.

"It certainly does cheer a man up to have some friend remark that he looks ten years younger."

"True. But, somehow, the same sort of compliment paid to a woman doesn't please her."

"Oh, that's easily understood. You have to add ten years to your age before you can take ten years off."

In Union There Is Strength.

Omar—Hello, Heiney! How did you get your eye blacked so artistically?

Heiney — Labor troubles.

Omar — On account of the union?

Heiney—Yes; my wife went on a strike.

A Good Guess.

"But I can't live properly on an allowance of $10 a week," protested the wayward son of a wealthy father.

"Oh, yes, you can," replied the wise parent. "What you mean is that you can't live improperly on that amount."

Too Much of a Good Thing.

"That man's laugh is like a tonic."

"I don't deny that it has a cheerful ring," said the cynic, "but hearing the same loud laugh all day long is like taking a dose of medicine every hour. It gets to be monotonous."

Of More Importance.

Wealth in Alaskan Waters.

When Alaska was purchased for only $7,000,000, no one thought of its prospective value as a source of food products, a Providence Journal man states. Alaska now is regarded as the coming center of the fish supply of the world. A writer familiar with the great territory says:

"The sea beats upon 26,000 miles of Alaska shore line, a distance greater than the circumference of the earth. All of that vast stretch of waters is teeming with the most edible fish on earth. Every bay is a harbor where these fish can be prepared for the markets of the world, and the greatest ships afloat can anchor in safety while taking on their cargoes."

The food wealth is no less important than the mineral wealth of Alaska, for the demand for foodstuffs of all descriptions is increasing and prices are advancing. The tapping of new sources of supply is most desirable.

PASSED A MISERABLE NIGHT

Refused Place in House, Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton Slept in Carriage.

Even the man who does not sympathize with the movement for woman's rights cannot help admiring the leaders of it. Elizabeth Cady Stanton proved more than once, says the Youth's Companion, that she had both physical and moral courage of a high order. She had often, say her biographers in "Heroines of Modern Progress," to utter her message under the most trying circumstances.

Once in Michigan a party of speakers visited a deaf and dumb institution. Mrs. Stanton just said: "There is one comfort in visiting this place, we shall not be asked to speak," when the superintendent came up with: "Ladies, the pupils are assembled in the chapel ready to hear you." They spoke, while the superintendent repeated in sign language what they said. At another time their boat was icebound in the middle of the Mississippi river. Someone shouted: "Speech on woman suffrage!" They rose to the occasion, and there at midnight made several new converts.

In Kansas Mrs. Stanton one night was refused lodging in a house, and ensconced herself in the carriage. "I had just fallen into a gentle slumber," she wrote, "when a chorus of grunts and a violent shaking of the carriage revealed to me the fact that I was surrounded by those long-nosed black pigs so celebrated for their courage and pertinacity. They had discovered that the iron steps of the carriage made most satisfactory scratching posts. 'Alas,' thought I, 'before morning I shall be devoured!'" She plied the whip upon them, but without effect; so she went to sleep and let them scratch at their pleasure. "I had a sad night of it, and never tried the carriage again, although I had many equally miserable experiences within four walls."

Circulating Medium.

One of the latest novelties offered by the street vendors in the financial district is Mexican paper money issued by more or less recent administrations—Huerta, Villa, Madera, etc. The price for all is about the same, a general average being about 10 cents per pound, and the denomination of notes making no particular difference. This places the currency on a par with Confederate money during the closing days of the war, when the finances of the Southern cause were at their lowest ebb.

"That's a fine horse you have," said one Confederate officer; "give you $25,000 for him."

"Twenty-five thousand, nothing!" retorted the officer. "I've just paid ten thousand to have him curried."—New York Times.

Musical Afternoon

The initial meeting of the Country Woman's Club for the season of 1916-17 was a musical held at the home of Mrs. Ralph Hyde, she with Mrs. A. I. Cramer and Mrs. Leigh Saunders being the hostesses.

The rooms were well filled, only a few members being absent. An enthusiastic business meeting was held, largely concerned with plans and discussions relative to the coming Flower Fete.

The program, consisting of the following numbers was most enjoyable and was much appreciated by the club:

Mrs. E. C. Merrill played three numbers from Mendelssohn, "Song Without Words," "Spring Song" and "Sketch in E Minor." Mr. Barron sang two sweet Southern Melodies, "Uncle Rome" and "Rockin' in de Wind" with Mrs. W. H. Crothers, accompanist. Miss Gwendolyn Everton of San Jose, a graduate of Mrs. Bickmore's Dramatic School, delighted her audience with her rendition of Joaquin Miller's, "The Sioux Chief's Daughter" and the pathetic—humorous encore, "Homeless," "The Sands o' Dee" and "Bonjour Ma Belle" were sung by Mrs. Warren Shelly, and a duet "All Thru The Night" by Mrs. Hyde and Mr. Shelly was followed by an encore in costume, sung by request, "No Sir," which gave a laughable close to the entertainment. Mrs. Robson G. S. played for these numbers.

During the social hour ice-cream and cake were served and later snap shots were taken of the group on the piazza.

FAVORS WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Some time ago a consideration of our economic conditions and tendencies, of the position of women in gainful occupations, of the nature and course of the demand, led me to the conclusion that the granting of suffrage to women is inevitable. Opposition may delay, but in my judgment cannot defeat this movement. If women are to have the vote, as I believe they are, it seems to me entirely clear that in the interest of the public life of this country the contest should be ended promptly. I favor the vote for women. —From Mr. Hughes' Speech of Acceptance.

ADEQUATE FEDERAL WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION LAWS.

I stand for adequate federal workmen's compensation laws, dealing not only with the employees of government, but with those employees who are engaged in interstate commerce, and are subject to the hazard of injury, so that those activities which are within the sphere of the constitutional authority of congress may be dealt with under a suitable law.—From Mr. Hughes' Speech of Acceptance.

The nation has no policy of aggression toward Mexico. We have no desire for any part of her territory.

We propose that in the competitive struggle that is about to come the American workingman shall not suffer.

OUR understanding of a good citizen is a man who is ever ready and willing to assume his share of the work for the common good of the community in which he resides, says an exchange. He is willing to dig in his pocket at all times and pay what he can afford to for public improvements. This he will do without a kick. He is always boosting his home town, and presenting its most favorable side to the outside world. He is a "good fellow" not only down town on the street, but to his family within his home. He pays his taxes without making such a roar about it that the people think paying taxes is original with him. He takes pride in keeping his premises neat and tidy. He is tolerant in his religious views and is free from bigotry. He believes in living and letting the other fellow live. He is free from avarice and jealousy, and is glad to see the other fellowman get ahead in the world. He has a kind word for young and old. He is a man among men, and he plays a man's part in the little things of every day life.

THE place to take the sure measure of a man is not the market place or the amen corner, not the forum or the field, but at his own fireside. There he lays his mask aside and you may learn whether he is an imp or angel, king or cur, hero or humbug. We care not what the world says of him—whether it crown him with jewels or pelt him with bad eggs, we care never a copper what his reputation may be. If his babies dread his coming home and his better half swallows her heart every time she asks him for a five dollar bill, he's a fraud of the first water even though he prays night and morn 'till he is black in the face and howls hallelujah 'til he shakes the eternal hills.—Ex.
